PLANET FITNESS

01

Challenge

Planet Fitness, oneof the largestandfastest-growing franchisors and operators of fitnesscentersin the country, wanted to help teens develop life-long exercise habits – especially over the summer when they didn't have access to their school gyms or sporting events. Planet Fitness turned to Montagne Powers to develop a pilot community-relations program to do just that.

As school was letting out for the summer in 2018, Montagne Powers launched the PF Teen Summer Challenge in the company's home state of New Hampshire to encourage teens to have an active and healthy summer.

02

Strategy & Tactics

Montagne Powers and PlanetFitness createthe program's framework, developing materials and strategies to connectwith local high schools and other organizations about the program. Montagne Powers also engaged the Governor of New Hampshire and the state's Department of Health and Human Services to help spread the word about the new PF Teen Summer Challenge.

The Governor joined Planet Fitness CEO Chris Rondeau at a launch event to drive media coverage and social media chatter about the program, and to announce that four program participants would receive $2,500 scholarships at the end of the summer to be used for academic or physical fitness activities.

03

Results

The program's launch generated100local,regionaland national media clips, 450,000 print impressions,424,000broadcastimpressions and 31 million online impressions.

More than 2,500 teens completed nearly 12,000 workouts through the inaugural PF Teen Summer Challenge, choosing to get off the couch, put down their devices and get active.

The success of the PF Teen Summer Challenge in New Hampshire spurred Planet Fitness to expand nationally, with Montagne Powers playing a key role in developing the national framework.

01

Challenge

The opioid crisis plaguingthe UnitedStateshit New Hampshire especially hard. Dartmouth-Hitchcock Health (D-HH), New Hampshire's largest health care provider and the state's only academic health system, wanted to show case its opioid-related research, innovative programs and initiatives, including the nationally-recognized "Moms in Recovery," program and position D-HH and its experts as leaders in combating the opioid crisis.

Dartmouth Health

02

Strategy & Tactics

Montagne Powers launched anintegrated strategic communications and brand awareness campaign, designed to garner media coverage and increase public awareness of D-HH's efforts on the front lines of the opioid crisis.

Our strategy included producing and hosting a day-long forum focused on mothers, children, and families, which brought together local, regional and national experts including U.S. Surgeon General Jerome M. Adams, MD, MPH, New Hampshire Governor Chris Sununu, U.S. Senator Jeanne Shaheen and D-HH experts for an exchange of ideas in combating the opioid crisis.

03

Results

The forum was fullto capacity withmorethan 500 attendees including a packed media center. We secured 72 clips in local, regional and national media outlets, with 55 million in combined print, online and broadcast impressions –and helped bring this important issue to the forefront of public awareness.

01

Challenge

Each day 30,000 callsare made from scam artists from the Jamaican 876-area codeto US Citizens – mostly targeting senior citizens in the form of a lottery scam, where they are asked for personal banking information or money in return for a prize. These calls result in $300 Million in annual financial losses.

FairPoint (now Consolidated Communications) customers were targeted at an alarming rate – including dozens throughout northern New England who lost hundreds of thousands of dollars each.

02

Strategy & Tactics

Launcha fullyintegratedstrategic communications campaign(paid, earned and owned media) across multiple channels to help raise awareness, warn customers and help put a stop the scam.

Montagne Powers organized a multi-state coalition of victims, senior advocates, law enforcement, and elected officials to launch Beware:Scams from 876. Press conferences were held across northern New England, a dynamic website was created featuring testimonials from victims and recordings from actual scammers, public service announcements were placed on dozens of radio stations and informational flyers were posted in senior centers.

03

Results

The campaign garnered national andinternational media attention – more than 173 news clips were secured, including ABC News, Dan Rather Reports, CBS News, Huffington Post, the Jamaican Observer and more, resulting in 443.7 million impressions. Our Beware of 876 website received over 180,000 visits from 173 countries and our YouTube video was viewed almost 73,000times.

So much pressure was exerted by the campaign, the U.S. Senate held hearings calling on FairPoint executives to testify about the scam. The Jamaican government created a task force to fight the scammers. Western Union temporarily shut down money transfers in Montego Bay, a known hot-spot for scammers who received wire transfers from victims. Two Jamaican politicians were arrested an accused of participating in the scam. The campaign forced Jamaica to change its laws allowing the extradition of accused scammers. Finally, five years after the campaign launch, eight Jamaican lottery scammers were charged on a 66-count indictment and were extradited to the United States to face justice.

Paul Revere Rides Again

Challenge

For nearly a decade, efforts to redevelop 35-acres of historic but highly contaminated land in the heart of Canton, MA fell short. Developers turned to Montagne Powers to rally community support for a mixed-use, community-centric development consisting of luxury residences, retail/commercial space, walking trails, recreation space and the renovation of Paul Revere's historic Copper Rolling Mill and Barn.

Strategy & Tactics

This was no easy task given previous unsuccessful attempts at redevelopment and the condition of the of the site, which was home to a dilapidated and toxic former rubber factory. In addition, the project faced negative public sentiment and the requirement of securing a supermajority vote on seven warrant articles at Town Meeting.

MP undertook a strategic communications campaign consisting of public and media relations, grassroots and grasstops coalition building and get-out-the-vote effort. We touted numerous site improvements and a comprehensive development agreement that greatly benefited the town including increased tax revenue, infrastructure improvements and renovation of Paul Revere's mill and barn for town use.

Results

The unthinkable was achieved – a supermajority of voters approved the project at Town Meeting. Today, residents can enjoy the luxury Copperworks Condominiums and amenities including a highly acclaimed restaurant, public park and Riverwalk and easy commuter access to Boston.

Transforming Historic Portsmouth - Portwalk

Challenge

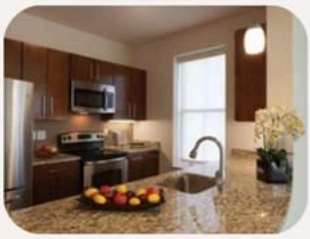

When Cathartes Private Investments, a Boston-based real estate investment and development company wanted to demolish Portsmouth's dilapidated Parade Office Park and replace it with a large mixed-use development, it turned to Montagne Powers to help communicate with abutters, the media, and key community stakeholders.

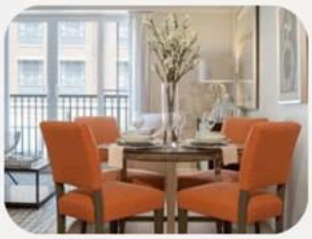

Strategy & Tactics

We managed all media relations for Portwalk, serving as spokesperson for the project for more than eight years. We set-up neighborhood information meetings, met directly with concerned abutters, staged media events and managed a fully integrated community relations effort that helped secure passage of the landmark project, called Portwalk.

Results

Built in three phases and completed in 2015, Portwalk, has become a vibrant, active, pedestrian-friendly, LEED-certified development featuring boutique shops, restaurants, downtown residences, prime office space, and three hotels.

Merrimack Premium Outlets

Challenge

When the world's foremost developer of Premium Outlet malls wanted to establish a presence in southern New Hampshire, they turned to Montagne Powers.

Strategy & Tactics

Montagne Powers principals began working with Chelsea Property Group (now Simon Property Group) on the Merrimack Premium Outlets project in late 2004. We provided strategic communication services to this project for eight years, starting with a successful campaign to pass a zoning amendment at Town Meeting – continuing with public relations counsel through several years of litigation and permitting – continuing further with crisis communications during a difficult construction period (blasting) and concluding with a grand opening in June 2012.

Results

Today, the Merrimack Premium Outlets is living up to its promise as a major employer and a mecca for cost-conscious shoppers looking for upscale brands and a premium shopping experience.

A Ray of Light - Westford Solar Farm

Challenge

When a Boston developer proposed Massachusetts' largest private solar farm (at the time) overlooking a gravel pit in Westford, it turned to Montagne Powers. For two years we provided expert strategic communications services, including media and community relations as well as special event planning.

Strategy & Tactics

The effort culminated in Westford Solar Park's very successful "Flip the Switch" event with Governor Deval Patrick, Secretary of Energy and Environmental Affairs Richard Sullivan, UMass Lowell Chancellor Marty Meehan and project partners. The tented event next to the array featured live entertainment, sun-themed refreshments, speeches and a media question-and-answer session.

Results

Then, with the Governor's ceremonial switch-flip, the 4MW facility, with solar panels covering more than 20 acres, was successfully launched and hailed by political leaders and activists within the renewable energy community.

A rail connection from NH to Boston

Challenge

New Hampshire is facing a workforce crisis and silver tsunami. Each day, tens of thousands of Granite Staters leave the state and travel to Massachusetts for work. A lack of in-migration and aging workforce is having a negative impact on employers who are unable to attract talented professionals. For companies to grow and prosper right here in New Hampshire, they need access to a younger, highly-educated workforce. That means the state needs to be able retain its homegrown talent, while at the same time drawing on Boston's vast talent pool. An expanded rail system makes this possible.

Strategy & Tactics

Montagne Powers led a coalition of communities, chambers of commerce and businesses in a multi-year public relations, education and advocacy effort to turn the tide of public and political opinion and secure critical funding for an in-depth analysis for passenger rail expansion from Boston to Nashua and Manchester.

Results

We created NH Business for Rail Expansion, a statewide, non-partisan coalition of 120+ businesses to voice these concerns and advocate before the legislature. We touted the tremendous economic benefits of rail expansion and public support (75.5% approval), participated in public forums, and worked with local, state and federal officials. Thanks to these efforts, Senate Bill 241 was signed into law, funding an analysis that will soon be shared with policymakers to make an informed decision on proceeding with the project.

PATRON TEQUILA

01

Challenge

In 2018, the firstSaturday in May happened to fall on May 5. That meant the Kentucky Derbyand Cinco de Mayo were taking place on the same day. For thirsty consumers that day, Patrón Tequila knew that choosing a cocktail might be a bit difficult – should it be a refreshing Patrón Margarita to celebrate Cinco, or honor Derby tradition and enjoy a Mint Julep?

TEQUILA
PATRÓN

02

Strategy & Tactics

To own the Cinco de Derbyoccasion, Patrón approachedthe venerable Brown Hotel in Louisville – a city landmark since 1923 – to help create and promote a newsworthy cocktail that combined both the Margarita and the Julep – a very very high-end “Agave Julep.”

Working with the hotel’s top bartender, we crafted a drink recipe using the exclusive Patrón en Lalique: Serie 2 extra añejo tequila (retail priced at $7,500 a bottle), and Old Rip Van Winkle 25-year-old bourbon. This unique cocktail was priced at $1,500(!) and came in a keepsake custom gold-plated engraved julep cup (with a portion of proceeds benefiting the Kentucky Humane Society’s Equine C.A.R.E. program).

And though not everyone could enjoy one (or afford one) in person, we also promoted an easy-to-prepare version people could mix at home, using more moderately priced Patrón Añejo tequila and bourbon.

03

Results

More than two dozen high-profile newssegments and articles included the Patrón “Agave Julep,” totaling over 145 million impressions. The story appear in top outlets such as Forbes, Men’s Journal, and The Robb Report, it was also prominently featured in two segments on NBC’s “Today” Show (on May 4, and then live from Churchill Downs on May 5).

More importantly, the cocktail reinforced the versatility of Patrón Tequila (tequila in a Mint Julep?!), and generated great national attention for a very pleased hotel account in Louisville.

01

Challenge

The New Hampshire Liquor Commission is the nation's most profitable and progressive control state, with $750 million in annual sales and 12 million annual customers visiting its 76 NH Liquor & Wine Outlet Locations.

Before we started working with them, they had little name recognition outside New England. How do you explain the benefits of a control state system to media and the public, tout the state's buying power and access to rare spirits, and put New Hampshire on the map nationally while capitalizing on the growing demand for premium bourbon and whiskey?

02

Strategy & Tactics

Most mediahavebeen todistilleries in Tennessee and Kentucky – but few have had the opportunity to experience a single barrel selection with a control state, yet alone one that would taste through 30 barrels and purchase 16 at a single distillery in a single day.

We organized immersion experiences with high-value media to help tell the story of why New Hampshire is one of the best kept secrets for buying rare spirits. For those who weren't able to attend, we sent samples straight to their door, and conducted virtual tastings with master distillers and our spirits buyer.

03

Results

Our campaign resultedin significant media coverage and opened the door to opportunities to be featured as subject-matter experts and obtain reviews in top-tier outlets like Esquire, Food & Wine, Whisky Advocate, Punch, Paste Magazine, Bourbon and Banter, and more.

NH and its Liquor & Wine Outlets are more than just likable, they're now known as one of the top states to buy bourbon, a must stop vacation destination, and one of the top-20 retailers in America.
